Northglenn Welcomes Tamara Dixon, New Director of Human Resources and Chief Diversity Officer

Dec. 3, 2020, Northglenn, CO – The City of Northglenn welcomed new Director of Human Resources and Chief Diversity Officer Tamara Dixon on Nov. 30. Dixon was selected from a nationwide pool of candidates and brings a wealth of experience to the city. The position, formerly Director of Management Services, now includes managing the Human Resources Department plus leading diversity and social equity endeavors for the organization.

“I have worked in multiple organizations that have gone through tremendous change due to the implementation of technology, regulatory reform, and increased strategic focus,” said Dixon. “The Northglenn position offered the opportunity to add chief diversity officer to the HR director role, which is exciting. I look forward to working with a new team on such an important endeavor. That the city has made diversity, inclusion, and social equity a priority is impressive.”

Dixon has over 17 years of leadership experience in the private and public sector, holding various human resources positions at Parson Consulting, City and County of Denver, City of Lone Tree, City of Wheat Ridge, Town of Parker and the University of Colorado at Denver. In addition to her bachelor’s degree and a master’s in public administration, she has multiple certifications. Her areas of expertise include culture change initiatives, service delivery, strategic human resources, project management, diversity, performance management, leadership training, strategic planning and retreat facilitation, and customer service.

“We are thrilled to have Tamara on board,” said City Manager Heather Geyer. “Tamara’s vision for advancing racial equity, positioning Northglenn as an employer of choice, and continuing our work on organizational culture was unmatched. We are fortunate to have a professional of her caliber on our team.”
