City Seeks to “Connect Northglenn”

Bicycle and Pedestrian Master Plan Process to Launch

May 1, 2017 – The City of Northglenn is kicking off “Connect Northglenn” – a citywide bicycle and pedestrian master plan process. The goal is to create a more connected and inviting sidewalk and trail network, where residents and visitors have new choices for traveling through Northglenn.

We’re inviting the community to the first public meeting on Wednesday, May 10, to learn more about the project and provide valuable feedback on what bicycle and pedestrian improvements you’d like to see in Northglenn.

Meet in front of the Northglenn Senior Center, 11801 Community Center Drive, around 5:30 p.m. Then we’ll walk around the area to see what you like and don’t like about the walking and biking trails and amenities in the area.

Afterwards, we’ll have a presentation and fun, interactive mapping exercises at the senior center until 8:30 p.m. Bring the whole family, as we’ll serve refreshments and have kid-friendly activities.

Go to www.connectnorthglenn.com for more information about the project and how to get involved. Contact Senior Planner Ashley Kaade at akaade@northglenn.org or 303-450-8836 with questions.
